Welcome to SlideGenius

Create stunning presentations with ease

FUNDAMENTAL THEOREM OF CALCULUS

Connecting differentiation and integration

$$ax^2 + bx + c$$

This theorem demonstrates that differentiation and integration are inverse operations. It allows us to compute the definite integral of a function by using any one of its infinitely many antiderivatives.